

An Encore for Star Formation

The structure of cluster NSC 1 has been explained in terms of an epoch of star formation of 10^5 stars in the past within a radius of about 50pc. However, if the gas in the cluster is not blown away, the gas left over from the initial epoch of star formation is likely to be retained. We would then expect later epochs of star formation in the cluster.

A Speculator