

Saving the Earth

We need to develop the technology to deflect large meteorites that might happen to be on a collision course with the Earth. Such meteorites could be intercepted by one or more rockets carrying nuclear warheads which would be exploded to deflect the course of the meteorite enough for it to miss the Earth. I propose that the feasibility of this scheme be investigated immediately.

Huan E.Teller